Dorsaneo, Texas Litigation Guide

Publication 719 Release 99

November 2010

HIGHLIGHTS

New Claims and Defenses Chapter

- This release includes new Chapter 1A, which covers the major causes of action that may be brought in Texas courts of general jurisdiction, and the defenses to those actions. It deals only with actions arising from Texas law, and not those based on federal statutes or the Constitution. See Ch. 1A.

Case Information Sheets

- Effective September 1, 2010, the Texas Supreme Court promulgated new Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 78a (Case Information Sheet), which requires that a civil case information sheet, in the form promulgated by the Texas Supreme Court, must accompany the filing of (1) an original petition or application; and (2) a post-judgment petition for modification or motion for enforcement in a case arising under the Family Code [see Tex. R. Civ. P. 78a(a)]. The information sheet must be signed by the attorney for the party filing the pleading or by the party [see Tex. R. Civ. P. 78a(b)].

Complete Index

- This release includes a completely revised index.

New Chapter 1A. Chapter 1A's coverage of the elements of the claims and defenses covered in Units 3 through 6 of the Texas Litigation Guide provides a concise explanation of the components of potentially available theories of recovery and defense in specific legal and factual contexts. The elemental description of these claims and defenses provides a basis for initial case evaluation to determine the existence of claims and defenses that are warranted by existing law and that have evidentiary support or that are likely to have evidentiary support on further investigation or discovery.

By providing counsel with an overview of the potentially applicable claims and defenses in particular subject areas, counsel can efficiently conduct a preliminary evaluation of a case that will be useful in deciding whether and on what basis to accept representation of the potential client and in the development of a preliminary litigation plan concerning the claims selected for further action.

Extensive cross references to specific chapters that contain more detailed guidance concerning claims and defenses are designed to facilitate the continued development and refinement of the litigation plan as the case proceeds through the litigation process.
